Hsien Tang Chen — Home Depot, Poway

What I Feel Good About

Order Fulfillment

- I have gained more appreciation for HD's order fulfillment operation.
- It works like a mini logistics network inside the store.
- I see logistics as a real strength of Home Depot and enjoy being part of it.

Recycling

- I appreciate HD providing customers with ways to recycle used items.
- It is a visible example of corporate and community responsibility.

Workplace Safety

- Safety continues to receive strong attention in the store.
- Rules and safe practices are regularly reinforced.
- I feel HD has built a strong safety culture.

Less In-Store Theft

- I have noticed fewer visible theft incidents over the past six months.
- Whatever measures HD has taken appear to be helping.

What I Have Learned

The Store Is a Logistics System

- Working at the Service Desk has helped me see how many people and systems are involved in completing one customer order.
- I would like to understand more of that chain — from ordering and receiving to fulfillment and customer pickup.

Performance Guidelines Have a Purpose

- LTPA helps keep customer experience visible and measurable.
- Entrance greetings are simple, but they set the tone for the customer's visit.
- I understand their value better after seeing them in practice.

Where I Can Get Better

Beyond D31

- Become more aisle proficient.
 - Learn more products and locations.
 - Better handle customer questions outside D31.

Where My Coworkers Can Get Better

HD Phone Communication

- Garden and sometimes Lot has disappeared from HD group.
- A quick “On my way” confirms that a request has been heard.
- Good phone communication helps the store work as one team.

Customer Calls — Need a Service-Ticket System

- Many customers depend on phone calls to reach an aisle associate or manager.
 - Most at Poway are responsive, but follow-through is not always consistent.
 - A simple service-ticket system could record the request, assign ownership, and track whether the customer received a response.
 - This would improve accountability and customer service without depending on repeated calls or verbal messages.

Looking Ahead

Technology

- AI and digital tools are becoming a bigger part of retail.
- I would like to better understand how HD's tools can improve accuracy, efficiency, and customer service.

Learning from Sibling Stores

- Nearby stores such as Mira Mesa and Carmel Mountain have improved in friendliness and service.
 - Healthy competition gives Poway a chance to learn from them and continue raising our own standard.

My Focus for the Next 6 Months

- Rental — Build practical tool knowledge.
- Logistics — Understand how the whole system connects.
- Teamwork — Communicate and respond quickly.
